Social Security and your retirement plan

Social Security is part of the retirement plan of almost every American worker. It's important to know how the system works and how much you'll receive from Social Security when you retire. This booklet explains:

- How you qualify for Social Security benefits.
- How your earnings and age can affect your benefits.
- What you should consider in deciding when to retire.
- Why you shouldn't rely only on Social Security for all your retirement income.

This basic information on Social Security retirement benefits isn't intended to answer all questions. For specific information about your situation, talk with a Social Security representative. Please visit us online at www.ssa.gov, or call our toll-free number.

Your retirement benefits

How do you qualify for retirement benefits?

When you work and pay Social Security taxes, you earn "credits" toward Social Security benefits. The number of credits you need to get retirement benefits depends on when you were born. If you were born in 1929 or later, you need 40 credits (10 years of work).

If you stop working before you have enough credits to qualify for benefits, the credits will remain on your Social Security record. If you return to work later, you can add more credits to qualify. We can't pay any retirement benefits until you have the required number of credits.

How much will your retirement benefit be?

We base your benefit payment on how much you earned during your working career. Higher lifetime earnings result in higher benefits. If there were some years you didn't work or had low earnings, your benefit amount may be lower than if you had worked steadily.

The age at which you decide to retire also affects your benefit. If you retire at age 62, the earliest possible Social Security retirement age, your benefit will be lower than if you wait. The “Early retirement” section explains this in more detail.

Get personalized retirement benefit estimates

As you make plans for your retirement, you may ask, “How much will I get from Social Security?” If you have a personal my Social Security account, you can get an estimate of your personal retirement benefits and see the effects of different retirement age scenarios. If you don't have a my Social Security account, create one at www.ssa.gov/myaccount or you can use our online Retirement Estimator at www.ssa.gov/estimator.

You can create a personal my Social Security account if you have a Social Security number, a valid U.S. mailing address, and an email address. You'll need to provide some personal information to confirm your identity. You'll be asked to choose a username and password, and then you'll be asked for your email address. You'll also need to select how you would like to receive an activation code — to a text-enabled cell phone, to the email address you registered, or mailed to the physical address you provided — that you will need to enter to finish creating your account. Each time you sign in with your username and password, we'll send a one-time security code to your cell phone or to your email address. The security code is part of our enhanced security feature to protect your personal information. Keep in mind that your cell phone provider's text message and data rates may apply.

Full retirement age

If you were born in 1954 or earlier, you're already eligible for your full Social Security benefit. The full retirement age is 66 if you were born from 1943 to 1954. The full retirement age increases gradually if you were born from 1955 to 1960 until it reaches 67. For anyone born 1960 or later, full retirement benefits are payable at age 67. The following chart lists the full retirement age by year of birth.

Age to receive full Social Security benefits
Year of birth	Full retirement age
1943-1954	66
1955	66 and 2 months
1956	66 and 4 months
1957	66 and 6 months
1958	66 and 8 months
1959	66 and 10 months
1960 and later	67

NOTE: People born on January 1 of any year, refer to the previous year.

Early retirement

You can get Social Security retirement benefits as early as age 62. However, we'll reduce your benefit if you retire before your full retirement age. For example, if you turn age 62 in 2021, your benefit would be about 29.2 percent lower than it would be at your full retirement age of 66 and 10 months.

Some people will stop working before age 62. But if they do, the years with no earnings will probably mean a lower Social Security benefit when they retire.

Sometimes health problems force people to retire early. If you can't work because of health problems, consider applying for Social Security disability benefits. The disability benefit amount is the same as a full, unreduced retirement benefit. If you're getting Social Security disability benefits when you reach full retirement age, we convert those benefits to retirement benefits. For more information, read Disability Benefits (Publication No. 05-10029).

Delayed retirement

You can choose to keep working beyond your full retirement age. If you do, you can increase your future Social Security benefits in two ways.

Each extra year you work adds another year of earnings to your Social Security record. Higher lifetime earnings can mean higher benefits when you retire.

Also, your benefit will increase a certain percentage from the time you reach full retirement age, until you start receiving benefits, or until you reach age 70. The percentage varies depending on your year of birth. For example, if you were born in 1943 or later, we'll add 8 percent to your benefit for each full year you delay receiving Social Security benefits beyond your full retirement age.

NOTE: You should sign up for Medicare three months before your 65th birthday, even if you haven't started receiving retirement benefits yet. In some circumstances, medical insurance costs more if you delay applying for it. You can find more information in the "A word about Medicare" section.

Deciding when to retire

Choosing when to start receiving retirement benefits is an important and personal decision. No matter the age you retire, contact Social Security in advance to learn your choices and make the best decision. Sometimes, your choice of the month to begin receiving benefits could mean higher benefit payments for you and your family.

Social Security replaces a percentage of a worker's pre-retirement income based on their lifetime earnings. The amount of your average wages that Social Security retirement benefits replaces varies depending on your earnings and when you choose to start benefits. If you start benefits at age 67, this percentage ranges from as much as 75 percent for very low earners, to about 40 percent for medium earners, and about 27 percent for high earners. If you start benefits earlier than age 67, these percentages would be lower, and after age 67 they'd be higher. Most financial advisers say you will need about 70 percent of pre-retirement income to live comfortably in retirement, including your Social Security benefits, investments, and other personal savings. For more information on other factors to consider as you think about when to start receiving Social Security retirement benefits, read Your Retirement Checklist (Publication No. 05-10377).

Apply for benefits about four months before you want your benefits to start. If you're not ready to begin receiving retirement benefits, but are thinking about doing so soon, visit our website at www.ssa.gov/benefits/retirement to learn more.

Retirement benefits for widows and widowers

Widows and widowers can begin getting Social Security benefits at age 60, or at age 50, if disabled. Widows and widowers can take reduced benefits on one record, and then switch to full benefits on another record later. For example, a woman can take a reduced widow's benefit at 60 or 62, and switch to her own full retirement benefit at full retirement age. Please contact Social Security to talk about your choices because the rules may be different for your specific situation.

Advance Designation

Advance Designation is part of the Strengthening Protections for Social Security Beneficiaries Act of 2018, which was signed into law on April 13, 2018.

Advance Designation allows capable adult and emancipated minor applicants and beneficiaries of Social Security, Supplemental Security Income (SSI), and Special Veterans Benefits to choose one or more individuals who could potentially serve as their representative payee in the future, if the need arises.

By selecting a representative payee in advance, you'll have peace of mind knowing that someone you trust may be appointed to manage your benefits if needed.

You can submit an Advance Designation request when filing a claim for benefits online using your personal my Social Security account, by telephone, or in-person.

Family benefits

Benefits for family members

If you're getting Social Security retirement benefits, some members of your family may also be eligible for benefits, including:

- Spouses age 62 or older.
- Spouses younger than 62, if they are taking care of a child entitled on your record who is younger than age 16 or disabled.

- Former spouses, if they are age 62 or older (see our section “Benefits for a divorced spouse” for more information).
- Children up to age 18, or up to 19 if full-time students and have not graduated from high school.
- Disabled children, even if they are age 18 or older, if they were disabled before age 22.

If you become the parent of a child (including an adopted child) after you begin getting benefits, let us know about the child. Then we'll decide if the child is eligible for benefits.

Spouse's benefits

Spouses who never worked or have low earnings can get up to half of a retired worker's full benefit. If you're eligible for both your own retirement benefits and spouse's benefits, we always pay your own benefits first. If your benefits as a spouse are higher than your own retirement benefit, you'll get a combination of benefits equaling the higher spouse's benefit.

For example, Mary Ann qualifies for a retirement benefit of $1,250 and a spouse's benefit of $1,400. At her full retirement age, she will get her own $1,250 retirement benefit. We also will add $150 from her spouse's benefit, for a total of $1,400. If she takes her retirement benefit before her full retirement age, we'll reduce both amounts.

If you were born before January 2, 1954, are at least full retirement age and qualify for your own retirement benefits and also spouse's (or divorced spouse's) benefits, you can choose to restrict your application, apply for one of the benefits, and delay applying for the other until a later date.

If you were born on or after January 2, 1954, and qualify for both retirement and spouse's (or divorced spouse's) benefits, you must apply for both benefits. This is called “deemed filing.” If you file for one benefit, you are “deemed” to file for the other one, too, even if you don’t become eligible for it until later.

If you’re receiving a pension based on work for which you didn’t pay Social Security taxes, we may reduce your spouse’s benefit. More information see the section “Pensions from work not covered by Social Security”.

If spouses get Social Security retirement benefits before they reach full retirement age, we reduce the benefit. The amount we reduce the benefit depends on when the person reaches full retirement age.

For example, if full retirement age is 67, a spouse can get 32.5 percent of the worker’s unreduced benefit at age 62.

The benefit increases the longer you wait to receive benefits, up to the maximum of 50 percent at full retirement age.

Your spouse can get full benefits, regardless of age, if taking care of a child entitled on your record. The child must be under age 16, or disabled, if they became disabled before age 22.

NOTE: Your current spouse can’t get spouse’s benefits until you file for retirement benefits.

Children’s benefits

Your dependent child may get benefits on your earnings record when you start your Social Security retirement benefits. Your child may get up to half of your full benefit.

To get benefits, your child must be unmarried and one of the following:

- Younger than age 18.
- 18-19 years old and a full-time student (no higher than grade 12).
- 18 or older and disabled before age 22.

Under certain circumstances, we can also pay benefits to a stepchild, grandchild, step-grandchild, or adopted child.

NOTE: Disabled children whose parents have limited income or resources may be eligible for SSI benefits. For more information, visit our website or call our toll-free number.

Maximum family benefits

If you have children eligible for Social Security, each will get up to half of your full benefit. But there's a limit to how much money we can pay to you and your family. This limit varies between 150 and 180 percent of your own benefit payment. If the total benefits due to your spouse and children are more than this limit, we'll reduce their benefits. Your benefit won't be affected.

Benefits for a divorced spouse

Your divorced spouse can get benefits on your Social Security record if the marriage lasted at least 10 years. Your divorced spouse must be 62 or older and unmarried.

The benefits they get don't affect the amount you or your current spouse can get.

Also, your former spouse can get benefits even if you haven't started to receive retirement benefits. You both must be at least 62 and divorced at least two years.

What you need to know when you're eligible for retirement benefits

How do you sign up for Social Security?

You can apply for retirement benefits online at www.ssa.gov, or call our toll-free number. Or you can make an appointment with a local Social Security office to apply in person.

Depending on your circumstances, you'll need some or all the documents listed below. Don't delay in applying for benefits if you don't have all the information. If you don't have a document you need, we can help you get it.

Information and documents you'll need, include:

- Your Social Security number.
- Your birth certificate.
- Your W-2 forms or self-employment tax return for last year.
- Your military discharge papers if you had military service.
- Your spouse's birth certificate and Social Security number if they're applying for benefits.
- Your children's birth certificates and Social Security numbers, if you're applying for children's benefits.
- Proof of U.S. citizenship or lawful alien status if you (or a spouse or child applying for benefits) were not born in the United States.
- The name of your financial institution, the routing number, and your account number for direct deposit. If you don't have an account at a financial institution, or prefer getting your benefits on a prepaid debit card, you can get a Direct Express® card. For more information, visit www.GoDirect.org.

You must submit original documents or copies certified by the issuing office. We must see the original document(s) or copies certified by the agency that issued them.

We cannot accept expired, notarized, or photocopied documents. You can mail or bring them to Social Security. We'll make photocopies and return your documents.

Right to appeal

If you disagree with a decision made on your claim, you can appeal it. You can handle your own appeal with free help from Social Security, or you can choose to have a representative help you. We can give you information about organizations that can help you find a representative. For more information about the appeals process and selecting a representative, read Your Right to Question the Decision Made on Your Claim (Publication No. 05-10058).

If you work and get benefits at the same time

You can continue to work and still get retirement benefits. Your earnings in (or after) the month you reach your full retirement age won't reduce your Social Security benefits. We'll reduce your benefits, however, if your earnings exceed certain limits for the months before you reach full retirement age. (See the chart in the "Full retirement age" section).

Here is how it works:

If you're younger than full retirement age, we'll deduct $1 in benefits for each $2 you earn above the annual limit.

In the year you reach your full retirement age, we'll reduce your benefits $1 for every $3 you earn over an annual limit. This reduction continues until the month you reach full retirement age. Once you reach full retirement age, you can keep working, and we won't reduce your Social Security benefit no matter how much you earn.

If, during the year, your earnings are higher or lower than you estimated, let us know as soon as possible, so we can adjust your benefits.

A special monthly rule

A special rule applies to your earnings for one year, usually your first year receiving retirement benefits. Under this rule, you can get a full Social Security payment for any month you earn under a certain limit, regardless of your yearly earnings.

If you want more information on how earnings affect your retirement benefit, read How Work Affects Your Benefits (Publication No. 05-10069). This pamphlet has a list of the current annual and monthly earnings limits.

Your benefits may be taxable

About 40 percent of people who get Social Security have to pay income taxes on their benefits. For example:

- If you file a federal tax return as an “individual,” and your combined income is between $25,000 and $34,000, you may have to pay taxes on up to 50 percent of your Social Security benefits. If your combined income is more than $34,000, up to 85 percent of your Social Security benefits is subject to income tax.
- If you file a joint return, you may have to pay taxes on 50 percent of your benefits if you and your spouse have a combined income between $32,000 and $44,000. If your combined income is more than $44,000, up to 85 percent of your Social Security benefits is subject to income tax.
- If you’re married and file a separate return, you’ll probably pay taxes on your benefits.

At the end of each year, we’ll mail you a Social Security Benefit Statement (Form SSA-1099) showing the amount of benefits you received. Use this statement when you complete your federal income tax return to find out if you must pay taxes on your benefits.

Although you're not required to have Social Security withhold federal taxes, you may find it easier than paying quarterly estimated tax payments.

For more information, read Tax Guide for Seniors (IRS Publication No. 554) and Social Security and Equivalent Railroad Retirement Benefits (IRS Publication No. 915) at www.irs.gov/publications, or call the Internal Revenue Service's toll-free telephone number, 1-800-829-3676.

NOTE: On the 1040 tax return, your "combined income" is the sum of your adjusted gross income plus nontaxable interest plus half of your Social Security benefits.

Pensions from work not covered by Social Security

If you get a pension from work for which you paid Social Security taxes, that pension won't affect your Social Security benefits. However, if you get a retirement or disability pension from work not covered by Social Security — for example, the federal civil service, some state or local government employment, or work in a foreign country — we may reduce your Social Security benefit.

Government workers who are eligible for Social Security benefits on the earnings record of a spouse, can read Government Pension Offset (Publication No. 05-10007) for more information. People who worked in another country, or government workers who are also eligible for their own Social Security benefits, can read Windfall Elimination Provision (Publication No. 05-10045).

Leaving the United States

If you're a U.S. citizen, you can travel to, or live in, most foreign countries without affecting your Social Security benefits. There are, however, a few countries where we can't send Social Security payments. These countries are Azerbaijan, Belarus, Cuba, Kazakhstan, Kyrgyzstan, Moldova, North Korea, Tajikistan, Turkmenistan, and Uzbekistan. We can make exceptions, however, for certain eligible beneficiaries in countries other than Cuba and North Korea. For more information about these exceptions, contact your local Social Security office.

If you work outside the United States, different rules apply in deciding if you can get benefits.

For more information, read Your Payments While You Are Outside The United States (Publication No. 05-10137).

A word about Medicare

Medicare is a health insurance plan for people who are age 65 or older. However, you can get Medicare at any age if:

- You've been entitled to Social Security disability benefits for 24 months.
- You have End-Stage Renal Disease (permanent kidney failure requiring dialysis or a kidney transplant), or amyotrophic lateral sclerosis (Lou Gehrig's disease).

When should I apply for Medicare?

If you're not already getting benefits, you should contact Social Security about three months before your 65th birthday to sign up for Medicare. You should sign up for Medicare even if you don't plan to retire at age 65 to avoid the late enrollment penalty.

If you're already getting Social Security benefits or Railroad Retirement Board benefits, we'll contact you a few months before you become eligible for Medicare and send you information. If you live in one of the 50 states, Washington, D.C., the Northern Mariana Islands, Guam, American Samoa, or the U.S. Virgin Islands, we'll automatically enroll you in Medicare Parts A and B. However, because you must pay a premium for Part B coverage, you can choose to turn it down.

We will not automatically enroll you in a Medicare prescription drug plan (Part D). Part D is optional, and you must elect this coverage. For the latest information about Medicare, visit the website, or call the toll-free number listed below.

Medicare	Website: Medicare.gov Toll-free number: 1-800-MEDICARE (1-800-633-4227) TTY number: 1-877-486-2048
-----------------	---

If you don't enroll in Part B or Part D when you're first eligible, you may have to pay a late enrollment penalty for as long as you have Part B or Part D coverage. Also, you may have to wait to enroll, which will delay coverage.

Residents of Puerto Rico or foreign countries won't receive Part B automatically. They must elect this benefit.

If you're 65 or older and covered under a group health plan, either from your own or your spouse's current employment, you may qualify for a Special Enrollment Period (SEP) to sign up for Medicare Part B. This means that you may delay enrolling in Medicare Part B without having to wait for a general enrollment period and paying the penalty for late enrollment.

If you have a Health Savings Account (HSA)

If you have a HSA when you sign up for Medicare, you can't contribute to your HSA once your Medicare coverage begins. If you contribute to your HSA after your Medicare coverage starts, you may have to pay a tax penalty. If you'd like to continue contributing to your HSA, you shouldn't apply for Medicare, Social Security, or Railroad Retirement Board (RRB) benefits.

Premium-free Part A coverage begins six months before the date you apply for Medicare (or Social Security/RRB benefits), but no earlier than the first month you were eligible for Medicare.

NOTE: To avoid a tax penalty, you should stop contributing to your HSA at least six months before you apply for Medicare.

“Extra Help” with Medicare prescription drug costs

If you have limited resources and income, you may qualify for Extra Help to pay for your prescription drugs under Medicare Part D. Social Security’s role in this program is to:

- Help you understand how you may qualify.
- Help you complete the Extra Help application.
- Process your application.

If you apply for Extra Help, we also will start an application for the Medicare Savings Programs, unless you tell us not to. To see if you qualify or to apply, visit our website at www.ssa.gov/benefits/medicare/prescriptionhelp or contact us.

Help with other Medicare costs

If you have limited income and resources, your state may pay your Medicare premiums and, in some cases, other “out-of-pocket” medical expenses, such as deductibles, copayments, and coinsurance.

Only your state can decide whether you qualify for help from the Medicare Savings Programs. For more information, contact your state medical assistance (Medicaid) office or State Health Insurance Assistance Program (SHIP). You can look up your state telephone numbers online at Medicare.gov/contacts or call 1-800-MEDICARE (1-800-633-4227).

Parts of Medicare

Social Security enrolls you in Original Medicare (Part A and Part B).

- Medicare Part A (hospital insurance) helps pay for inpatient care in a hospital or limited time at a skilled nursing facility (following a hospital stay). Part A also pays for some home health care and hospice care.
- Medicare Part B (medical insurance) helps pay for services from doctors and other health care providers, outpatient care, home health care, durable medical equipment, and some preventive services.

Other parts of Medicare are run by private insurance companies that follow rules set by Medicare.

- Medicare Advantage Plan (previously known as Part C) includes all benefits and services covered under Part A and Part B — prescription drugs and additional benefits such as vision, hearing, and dental — bundled together in one plan.
- Medicare Part D (Medicare prescription drug coverage) helps cover the cost of prescription drugs.
- Supplemental (Medigap) policies help pay Medicare out-of-pocket copayment, coinsurance, and deductible expenses.

For more information, read Medicare (Publication No. 05-10043).
